N.B Some publications had a rider called Tommy Burgess in the Stoke team for the challenge match at home to Belle Vue Reserves and the opening away league meeting at Hackney. I had no other details about a Tommy Burgess but there was a George Burgess at Belle Vue (second halves) in 1938. I always wondered if these were the same person.

When Stoke opened in 1939, the advisor to the new promotion was E.O. Spence of Belle Vue and the Aces loaned some riders to Stoke to help them with early team building. These were Harold Jackson, Alan Butler and Len Eyre, later followed by Jack Gordon, Oliver Hart and J.D. White – all Belle Vue contracted riders. It would then make sense that George Burgess would be another early loanee. Looking at the Sentinel reports for these meetings, they have George Burgess, not Tommy, named in the scorers and heat results. I tend to work on the ‘balance of probabilities’ theory and, having never heard any other mention of a Tommy Burgess, I believe that it was George in the early Stoke teams. I have no other information about George at the moment but Frank Burgess (1930-31 Belle Vue and York) had a brother called George and it may be him, although I am not sure enough at the moment.
